NO. 1.

NEW MEMBERS OF THE FACULTY

One Doctor and Two Masters Elected to Fill The Vacancies

The latter part of July, Charles E. Whittle tendered his resignation as president of Ogden College, after a service of three years, and at a meeting of the Regent and board of trustees a few days later Col. Robert Allen Burton, of Danville, Ky., was elected to the vacancy.

Col. Burton assumed his new duties the first of August, and outlined his progressive policies which have already attracted wide-spread attention. At the opening of the present session on September 7th, the new president made a strong appeal to the students assembled in Snell Hall, and assured those present that it was his purpose to continue the traditions of the school and make no radical changes. Hon. R. C. P. Thomas, regent of Ogden College, supported the statement made by Col. Burton.

The entire student body, patrons and friends of the College are delighted with the selection of a chief executive of the College, and have every reason to believe that Ogden will become greater and better under the administration of President Burton.

Col. Burton is a native of Kentucky, and received his academic training at Centre College and the University of Kentucky.

REV. S. S. DAUGHTRY, D. D. SPEAKS AT OGDEN

Rev. S. S. Daughtry, D. D., a "Son of Ogden," and a man who has deservedly won no little renown, and who is now pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Ashland, Kentucky, delivered a very fine and inspiring address to the students of Ogden College this morning at chapel. He dealt with that great, deep, serious subject in which we are all interested and with which we are all vitally connected—life. He pointed out clearly that a life without a purpose; without an aim; without an ambition, could never be a success.

These four points we would like to pass on to those who did not have the privilege of hearing him: First, "I ought, that is my duty, second, 'I can, that is my purpose,' third, 'I will, that is my power,' and fourth, 'I have, that is my victory.'"

The student body and faculty enjoyed his address very much and all join in extending to him a most hearty welcome to return as often as he can conveniently do so.

NEW PRESIDENT

AT OGDEN COLLEGE

COL. R. A. BURTON

PRES. WHITTLE RESIGNS

Some three years ago there fell a hush upon the student body at Ogden. Chapel had assembled and President Edgerton was not in his usual place. Then the chapel door opened and Regent Thomas entered, closely followed by a boyish looking man and President Edgerton.

After conducting the devotional Dr. Edgerton made a short speech in which he stated that he had resigned. Then Regent Thomas introduced the new president. He was not a new man; he was a close friend of the students, and he was an Ogden product.

That same young educator soon proved his worth in his new field as President of Ogden. Imbued with the traditional ideals of Ogden, and moved by a love for his alma mater, he took up a task which he never abandoned until he had laid the foundation for a greater Ogden. As Roosevelt was characterized by his ever proclaiming "Americanism," President Whittle was characterized by his ever preaching loyalty to the Ogden traditions and spirit.

In his early days as President he started the fight for recognition by the Southern Association of Colleges. During his administration the faculty was raised from a group of instructors with bare degrees to a group at the present wherein not a single one has not had a large amount of graduate work. Not only was the scholastic standing increased, but the fruits began to show. Ward Sumpter was admitted to Yale and came out in the upper

DR. LEWIS RETURNS

In returning to a chair in Ogden College, Dr. Lewis is only renewing old associations. He entered the college on the first day it opened and was a member of its first graduating class.

This is the third time he has been connected with the College in the capacity of a teacher. He was, the first year after graduation from the institution, principal of a grammar school which was then connected with the College and from 1906 to 1912 he was president of its faculty. During his administration, the standard of the course offered was raised two years and the foundation laid for making it a Senior College.

While he has been connected with several institutions in an executive capacity and made a success in that kind of work, he has always preferred the work of teaching in the classroom to any administrative position and is always happy in meeting his students in the classroom in the way of close personal contact.

Deciding early in his career to make teaching a profession, Dr. Lewis has prepared himself specially in that work and having had lecture courses at Princeton, Johns Hopkins, and other universities, he is well equipped for the work of his chair in Ogden.

Several of the Ogden Alumni saw the Ogden Warriors defeat the Cumberland Bulldogs at Lebanon last Saturday. Among them were Paul Grider, Rhodes Myers, Marshall Love, Prof. Lee, and Motley Adams.

SCHOOL OPENS BRIGHT YEAR

Best Prospects For Good Year
In History of The College

Monday morning, September 7, 1925, school opened at Ogden. The wheels began to roll. Students and teachers soon found their places, put their shoulders to the wheel and began to push; all going the same way—toward a "Greater Ogden." In enrollment, the hundred mark was passed long ago and fine young men are coming in every day.

Every one seems to have the proper attitude toward the school work: Just the kind of attitude that is necessary for the healthy growth of the mental self. It is a recognized fact that no school, no faculty, no student body can ever be a success unless the student body have the proper attitude toward school work and all school activities. Ogden men, let's keep and hold in high appreciation that correct attitude; the attitude that has characterized the "Ogden of the past" and that will keep the "Ogden of the future" on the map—the Ogden attitude.

To students of larger colleges and large high schools, the enrollment at Ogden may seem very small; but we ask them to remember that the thing that we strive for and the thing that we would boast most of is quality rather than quantity. Our enrollment does not run up into the hundreds it is true, but neither do the students in our classes run up into large numbers. The classes are small and, therefore, each student gets personal attention. And it is only this that will develop to the fullest extent that part of each individual's life which makes them different from all other individuals, namely: personality.

The school work is progressing nicely. The students are taking hold of the work with the real Ogden Spirit and show a determination to continue to carry forward the high standards of scholarship, which by tradition belong to Ogden.

The student body is full of the "Ogden Spirit"; the faculty is full of the "Ogden Spirit"; this gives us strong assurance that the school year will be one of the most successful in the history of Ogden. Good school spirit, good athletics, good school year; all go hand in hand. They seem almost synonymous; at least they suggest one another. School spirit is the life of the school.

Editorial

AGAIN the Cardinal greets its friends with a figurative handshake and wishes them a successful year. Without our friends and patrons we could not keep up our bi-weekly publication.

This is our fifth consecutive year. Each year The Cardinal has shown a marked improvement.

Beginning with the small three column sheet four years ago when even that was quite an effort, it has grown to its present size.

The second year showed no increase in size, but the makeup was better. The third it outgrew its three columns and the staff had to make it four. At the beginning of the fourth year, the staff voted to hold it the same size, but to increase the number of circulation. This was easy to vote, but hard to carry out.

The paper was to be placed upon a business basis. To do this, and if the advertisers were to receive full benefits in return for the money invested, the circulation had to be somewhere close to eight hundred.

The Alumni were besieged. The students were stormed. Every prospective subscriber was attacked. After the smoke of battle cleared away and a few of the best high school seniors over the state were added, the staff was startled at the mailing list containing 1031 names.

This year the Staff decided to increase the size of the paper and set the goal at eight hundred for the mailing list. To do this we asked the business men for more advertising and are making the same effort as before to get subscribers.

If you are an Ogden man, show your loyalty and spirit by contributing your mite to the support of the organ that is helping to build your alma mater by reaching at least eight hundred people and rivals the famous Ogden Football team which just defeated the Cumberlanders in spreading the "Ogden Gospel."

INTER-STATE CONFERENCE.

QUEER that we hear so much about inter collegiate debates, inter collegiate athletic events, and inter-collegiate this and that, but never hear anyone speak of an "Inter-Staff" Conference where the staffs of the different college papers could meet and discuss the trials and tribulations and thus get at the hard knots in a different way. You may ask what benefits could be derived from such a meeting. In fact they are too numerous to enumerate.

First we could discuss the different methods used in financing the papers. Every staff knows that the financing of a paper comes real easy or absolutely hard. The former is where the school furnishes the cold cash and the latter is where the staff has to raise every cent of the expenses. The circulation furnishes a nice part of the budget (when there is one, and every paper should run on that basis) and methods of increasing the number of subscribers should prove interesting.

Then the general content of the papers could be discussed. Really, what should a college paper contain? What shall the editors accept for publication? Should a paper attempt to "advertise" the school? Should the staff be entirely free to criticize any member of the faculty or of the school? Should it be independent of but responsible to the faculty? Many such questions are answered by an "iron-hand" faculty, but in such cases is where the staff should know how their fellow staff members feel about the matter and the best method to use to declare their independence and the proper strategy to use in winning the ensuing battle.

By this I do not mean that a staff should be entirely independent of the faculty. The Cardinal takes a middle road and operates without any friction whatever. The staff as a body is responsible to the faculty, still independent of.

The faculty cannot tell the staff what to publish no more than an outsider. If any member of the faculty hands an article to the staff, that article must be approved by the staff before it is published, just as if it had come from anyone else. This curtails the chance of utilizing the columns of the paper for purely advertising purposes or expressing biased opinions on any subject. Of course the faculty has the authority to say with equal force what shall not be published in the way of criticism—that is why the staff is responsible to the faculty.

The best makeup could also be discussed. Why do some papers look so well balanced and others seem to be top heavy?

But this is enough about the conference. The Editor will be glad to correspond with any other publication on this subject.

We all need the benefits offered by such a gathering and should hold the meeting as soon as possible. What do you say, shall we have it?

IT IS SEVENTY NOW!

WITH the new members of the faculty comes the reminder that has been the so seeming slogan of the Professors, "They shall not pass." But this time this slogan seems to be modified. According to the announcement made in chapel the other morning its present version runs something like this: "They shall not pass under an average of seventy."

This makes a new era at Ogden so far as grading is concerned. From the time immemorial when Major Obenchain held sway until our youthful President of last year "Sixty six and two-thirds of fail" was the fighting slogan of the faculty. This higher standard means harder work and better scholarship and consequently better trained graduates in the future.

OUR TRADITIONS

SOME of our new additions to the College often speak of how things are done in other schools and colleges where by chance they have attended. Some robust athlete should advise these spreaders of foreign propaganda that Ogden has forty-nine years of tradition behind her customs and can point to a greater percentage of noted and successful men numbered among her alumni than any other institution in this section of the country.

ABOUT THE ANNUAL

If an Annual, then the best annual of all.

That should be the aim rather than the ideal.

An ideal is something removed, vague, unreal.

An aim is something to shoot at.

You can't keep a good thing down.

It was started last year and the year before.

The annual is coming out this year.

'Tis true that we had an annual some years ago.

But that was yesterday.

And yesterday is only a cancelled check; something to file away.

We can't wait until tomorrow. For tomorrow is only a promissory note.

Today is the only cash in hand.

Today is the day to start boosting the Annual.

So if an Annual, then the best annual of all.

OGDEN-CUMBERLAND GAME

Cardinals Chase "Bulldogs" Into Own Kennel, Grad Proverbial Bone.
Escape, Barking Six Times to Their Three.

This is the way the story reads: The team, chaperoned by Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Lee, journeyed to Lebanon, Tennessee last Friday morning in a twenty-five passenger bus. The crossing of the Cumberland river proved to be quite an exciting event; the old darkey, the proprietor of the ferry, said he absolutely would not consider trying to carry an 8500-pound bus on his boat but after much persuasion he finally yielded and consented to make the attempt. When the bus was safely across he said that he could take a dozen such busses across if he could only get them on his boat. (What had happened in his brain?)

Cumberland practiced on their golf course, letting Ogden have the regular playing field for practice Friday afternoon. The practice was held in the rain and coach made it rather light, being featured by sensational snagging of passes by the line.

And so Gene kicked off to Cumberland, booted the ball to the half of our honorable opponents. Said half was tackled and spilled after carrying the ball back fourteen yards. Smith was the father of the tackle that meant the downfall of Cumberland's initial trial at carrying the ball (You may as well get used to seeing Doug's last name because it will be used quite often since he starred, if anyone did, in Ogden's '25 football debut.)

Driven back by the hard tackling of Rice and Gilliam, unable to gain through Ogden's line and penalized fifteen yards, the Red Bulldogs, standing behind their own goal line, tried to punt the ball out of danger. Two Red Devils broke through Cumberland's line and squealed the punter most effectively. "Done" Smith ably seconded by "Check" Gilliam recovered the ball and dashed across the goal line for Ogden's score. Eddie Schwartz attempted to kick goal but missed.

Cumberland broke loose in second quarter with all the vigor and power it could muster. By straight football they marched the ball down the field to Ogden's fifteen yard line only to be held for three downs. Then, seeing how futile it would be to attempt to put it over the line, one of the backs kicked the nickskin between the uprights from a placement this accounted for the remainder of the score.

The third and fourth quarters were featured by determined aerial attacks by the Bulldogs and sensational end runs by Reynolds and King for Ogden.

On the offense Ogden's best lineman proved to be Bob Davis, he always took care of his man and besides made perfect passes to the backs. King was the super-man in Ogden's backfield and proved himself to be a real quarter.

Stewart was substituted for

Dick Davis when the regular's ankle was pulverized by the "Four Horseman" of Cumberland. "Bull" duplicated his good work of last year and broke up the aerial attack of the Bulldogs by rushing the passer. Hartford was substituted for Rice, it being feared that Rice might be needed at quarter later on in the game. Hartford played a consistent game of ball and was in on his share of the tackles. Jones substituted for Hensgen and proved that he was made of the proper stuff, effectually playing Left Guard and getting good tackles and blocking well when making interference.

Our football team may have many serious defects and faults but it has one asset that cannot be overestimated—it has spirit and fighting spirit at that. The backfield is not quite as fast in getting away now but they are earnestly at work trying for more speed. Eddie needs experience in backing up the line, but he can be depended on to get that.

One thing don't forget—Ogden's football team has the power this year. So back 'em up and keep up the pep.

CITY TENNIS TOURNAMENT

David Hall Sledge Duplicates Last Years Record
Winning Meet

For the second time in as many years David Hall Sledge, another Ogden Senior, has won the Bowling Green Tennis Tournament.

This year Sledge defeated Harold Nored in the finals in straight sets 6-1, 6-1, 6-1. Up to the finals the champ met two men, Paul Hampton and Martin, who were ambitious for local tennis laurels. Hampton was defeated by the score of 6-0, 6-1 while Martin put up a little harder fight before being downed, however, Sledge managed to

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE AND PROSPECTS

Football Prospects Best In The History of Ogden For Great Year

We have this year one of the best teams ever to don the Red and Green and incidentally one of the hardest schedules ever faced by an Ogden team. With only three games at home and six to be played on foreign fields, the odds are heavy against a winning season but the team have already shown their attitude by copping the first game, one of the hardest, from Cumberland University at Lebanon, Tenn.

All of the games to be played in foreign territory are in Tennessee with but one exception, Oakland City College which is in Indiana.

With such odds against the favored warriors of the red and green there is one odd in their favor—which is spirit. They know that they've the whole student body and many alumnus behind them and that they have the material and can overcome any fair odds.

Providing that clean sportsmanship is met with on all fields a very successful season on the gridiron should be weathered by our little school upon the hill.

COUNTRY CLUB, GOLF TOURNEY

Won By Eddie Schwartz, Ogden Senior, Over Many Competitors

Eddie Schwartz, Ogden College Senior, President of the Student Council, President of the Triangle Club and member of Pi Beta Chi, won the Bowling Green Country Club Handicap Golf Tournament on the 23rd of September and incidentally copped the beautiful silver loving cup which was offered as a prize to urge on the numerous competitors.

In the finals Eddie defeated Dr. Fred Reardon, a former Ogden Man, 2 up and 1 to go. Previous to this the Champ defeated George Massey, Sr., 2 up and 1 to go. Clarence Nahm by 7 up and 5 to go and Dr. Hal Neel in the semi-finals 3 up and 1 to go. The last two matches were especially hard-fought as is evidenced by the closeness of the scores.

The 1925 tournament was one of the most hotly contested ever witnessed on the local greens and according to the gallery one of the most interesting to be seen anywhere.

Schwartz on account of his low scores during the past summer had the lowest handicap of all the entrants and for that reason was at a slight advantage.

Last Thursday morning,
just the day before the foot-

Each of them made excellent talk, also members of the stu-

student body elected Sledge yell-leader; we had some yell practice, and then some more talks from the students, and the result of it all was that there were about fifty men on the side-lines at Cumberland yelling for Ogden. We believe that that is one thing that helped to make the score 6 to 3 in Ogden's favor.COUNTRY CLUB*GOLF TOURNEY

group of his class.

Lowery Bray went to the University of Florida and is now on the faculty at Georgetown College. Ennis Harris went to the University of Indiana and is now teaching in Florida. Our own Prof. Lee has done extensive graduate work at the University of Michigan where he made a good record for himself and brought honor to Ogden.He fostered athletics in the College and secured Coach Johnson, the first coach to be employed by the College. Believing that a knowledge of the Bible is essential to good scholarship and necessary to make a real success in life, he added to the curriculum a course in Biblical Literature and taught it for a time himself.Although the Regent begged him repeatedly to remain at Ogden, he resigned to re-enter his chosen profession, the practice of law, and to make the race for County Attorney of his home county. His resignation is regretted by every student at Ogden, but we trust he knows best what his calling in life is,
and we submit to his will, although we wish that he could have remained and helped us enjoy "New Ogden" and the new building which he was so instrumental in helping erect.He was a very popular commencement speaker and was in great demand each year to deliver addresses over the state.
Although looked upon with suspicion by many because of the responsible positions of his extreme youth, he has repeatedly shown that his capacity to deliver the goods far outranks his age—that although a possessor of a face of twenty-four, he has the judgment of a man several years his senior.He is a member of a law firm here in Bowling Green and has offices in Brownsville, Kentucky, his home county seat.
The Cardinal takes this meagre way in expressing its appreciation for him and wishing him the greatest success, of which we are confident.His lofty idealism, his manly example, and his intense loyalty to Ogden traditions endeared him to the students and to the people of Bowling Green generally. If he does as much for his home county as he has done for Ogden College, that county is facing a period of great progress.NEW MEMBERS OF FACULTY

tucky and Bethany College. He has served as Commandant of Cadets in Kentucky Military Institute, and Superintendent of Jefferson Military College, Tennessee Military Institute and Danville Military Institute. In addition to his administrative duties, Col. Burton has seen considerable service as an army officer in camp, field and garrison.President Burton has many things in view for the advancement of Ogden, and he is appealing to the alumni, former students and friends to rally to his support.HARTIG & BINZEL*MOORES CLOTHING
